

Our client is a multinational company headquartered in Switzerland that has a large and modern R&D facility in Germany. Its wide-ranging patent portfolio centres on high-throughput analyses with a large application spectrum, currently focused on the characterization of immune responses for drug discovery. The proprietary technology provides unique label-free measurements of molecular interactions, which can be applied in the development of T-cell therapeutics and vaccines, as well as lead and hit screening.

To coordinate and elaborate the corporate strategy together with the company's management including the preparation and follow-up of the content required (presentations, reports, concepts, and minutes), we are looking for our client for a

Senior Project Manager (m/f/d)

Major Duties of Position

- monitor the company's product development strategy (drug discovery and development, preclinical and clinical development strategy)
- support the set-up and expansion of the company's drug development partner network (CDMOs, analytical laboratories, regulatory consulting, preclinical and clinical CROs, academic institutions, and others).
- assist in the evaluation of the company's strategic opportunities in terms of business development and market trends
- coordinate future Target Product Profiles (TPP) for the company's projects as well as future regulatory documents
- monitor the company's operational customer projects in terms of schedule, quality, and costs performing change management as needed

Your Profile

- several years of experience in drug development in the biopharmaceutical industry
- background in biology or biomedical engineering or a related field
- solid understanding of successfully leading projects in start-up environments
- passion for serving as communication interface between the executive board, heads of project and future customers
- strong work ethic who works independently within a dynamic and committed team
- good written and oral communication skills in both German and English
